“BotsIQ is a tool to create interest in middle and high school students in the world of manufacturing. Future toolmakers and machinists can make use of this source to carry on our trade.”

“As creator and Commissioner of the Midwest Robotics League and former advisor to Bots IQ, I applaud the efforts and achievements of the robot combat initiative in Wisconsin. Recently I was given the pleasure of emceeding their local event and was pleasantly surprised at the number of volunteers and the level of professionalism reflected in every detail. I was especially impressed by the arena that was built by members of the organization, making sure to mention many times that it was the nicest arena I had seen to date.

I am excited to watch Wisconsin’s robot combat program grow and continue to support workforce development for the manufacturing industry.”
